MILL WORKER MURDERED AT BELLE VERNON

At an early hour Sunday morning Belle Vernon was the scene of what appears to have been a brutal murder, the victim being a workman in the Pittsburgh Steel mill.

Chino Carini, an Italian, living near the plant of the American Window Glass Co., states that about 1 o'clock he heard a man exclaim, "My God, I've got enough."

Carini, it is said investigated and soon found three men in deadly combat, two of whom seemed to be mercilessly beating the other. Recognizing the victim, as a friend named Antonio Vaccario, he interfered, knocking one of the assailants down, and when the other drew a gun Carini fled home to arm himself for defense. Returning to the scene he found that all three of the men had disappeared.

Sunday morning Vaccario's body was found, lying face down in about a foot of water along the river shore, with one side of the head crushed.

Deputy Coroner J. W. Gordon is investigating the case and the body was brought to the undertaking rooms of G. F. Wright on Donner avenue Sunday, the inquest by jury to be held later.

Vaccario, an Italian, aged 28 years, was a wire drawer at the Pittsburgh Steel mill and had been in America nine years. The Monessen Italian Society, of which he was a member will have charge of the funeral and are arranging for the necessary expenses thereof.

MAN FOUND DEAD NEAR CHARLEROI

An unknown man well up in years, was found yesterday on the side of the road leading to the Charleroi cemetery with a bullet hole through his left breast and his body frozen stiff. In his hand he held a revolver with which he had undoubtedly committed suicide. The man was evidently a butcher, judging from tattoo markes on his arms. The initials J. B. were found both in his hat and on his arm. The body is at the undertaking rooms of Dep. Coroner L. B. Frye where it is awaiting identification.

MURDER OF LITTLE GIRL AT MONESSEN SLOWLY IS UNRAVELING ITSELF

As the result of the publishing of an exclusive story in the Independent, issue January 23, referring to the brutal murder of little Annie Hertnick at this paice five years ago, and the reported confession by a nogro named Clarence Ross in the Western Penitentiary, a more thorough investigation by our reporters and delving into our old files we are enabled to further confirm the correctness of the theories held out at that time as to who might have been guilty of the crime. It will be remembered that at the time of the murder the services of the State Constabulary were sought, and while the real facts remained shrouded in mystery, there were theories advanced that time seems to be verifying.

At the time of the murder, a thorough search was made by our local officials in connection with the State police, and all theories advanced seemed to point to the one conclusion that the deed was committed by a colored man, and Capt. Lynn G. Adams, of the mounted police, even went so far as to suspect Clarence Ross, a colored man now in the Western penitentiary for another offense, but the facts could never be proven.

About the time of the murder, it will also be remembered, that the great Raymond, a magicin gave a week's entertainment in the Monessen opera house and that his sister, who was a mind reader of no mean ability was asked by friends of the dead child, to help fathom the mystery, and blind folded and without knowing the facts, she readily recited the story of the cruel murder, told where and how the child was found. She went so far as to say that the murderer was a colored man, but would not read his name.

So, the alleged confession by Ross, again brings to mind this horrible murder of an innocent and unsuspecting child, and for the enlightenment of our readers we give a synopsis of the facts.

The murder of little eight-year-old Annie Hertnick of Monessen, occurred on October 6, 1906. The child was found, with her throat cut from ear to ear, partially concealed under leaves in an open strip of woods on the Luce farm, about three-quarters of a mile from Monessen. The child's body was horribly mutilated and showed evidences that a criminal assault had been committed before the little victim was murdered. The discovery of the body was brought about by the failure of the little one to come home, after being sent for the cow. News of the atrocity aroused the entire neighborhood. Funds were raised for the hiring of private detectives. However, the case baffled their best efforts and no arrests were made.

Six months later, on April 27, 1907, Miss Sarah Round, night operator at the Pricedale telephone exchange, was assaulted and robbed while on her way to work. Sergeant Adams and Private McGargle of Troop A. were detailed on the case. The girl was crossing a field enroute to work when she was felled by the negro. In attempting to stop the screams of his victim, the negro was badly bitten on the thumb.

After a search of several days through the mills and hotels of this section, Captain Adams learned that a negro wearing his thumb bandaged, was working at Bentleyville. He was arrested and brought before the girl, who identified him by his walk and general appearance. Ross protested his innocence, claimed that he caught his thumb on a nail while coming down the "Seldom Seen" hollow stairs, on his way to a union meeting the night of the assault. Inquiry developed the fact that he had attended no union meeting, had failed to visit his cousin, a man named Tinsely where he, according to his story, got the rag with which to bandage his thumb, and the net closed around him.

He was tried in the August term of court, in 1907, and sentenced to seven and one-half years to the penitentiary.

While working in the case, Capt. Adams learned that the negro was working about a half mile from the scene of the little Hertnick girl, six months before. On the support of this and other evidence he was able to accumulate, Captain Adams confronted the negro with an accusation of the crime. This Ross stoutly denied.

Mrs. Charles Shrader and Mrs. Gustave Kruell visited the Dames of Malta Lodge in Pittsburgh Friday evening.

STEREOPTICON VIEWS FROM MARTIN LUTHER

Do not fail to attend the illustrated lecture tomorrow evening in the Sunday school room of Christ Lutheran church by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Waltner. Scenes from the great Church Reformation will be presented by the use of a good stereopticon. Beginning with Waldue, of France, Wycliffe, of England, Hass, of Bohemia, and Savonarola, of Italy, and following Luther and his colaborers in their battles and victories, we are led, step by step, through the great work of the Reformation of the sixteenth century, which, by the providence of God still goes on, and shall forever go on, the keynote of which was struck full, and clear, in the ninety-five theses nailed to the church door at Wittenberg — Salvation through Christ alone —and by which civil and religious liberty were restored to men.

The lecture will start promptly at 7:30.

WHAT LISZT DID FOR MUSIC

His Compelling Personality, Genius and Inspiration Made Possible the Later Wagner.

But he introduced into the musty academic atmosphere of musical Europe a strong, fresh breeze from the Hungarian puzta; this wandering piano player of Hungarian-Austrian blood, a genuine cosmopolite, taught music a new charm, the charm of the unexpected, of the improvised. The freedom of Beethoven in his later works and of Chopin in all his music became the principal factor in the style of Liszt. Music must have the shape of an improvision. In the Hungarian rhapsodies, the majority of which begin in a mosque and always end in a tavern, are the extremes of his system. His orchestral and vocal works, the two symphonies, the masses and oratorios and symphonic poems are full of dignity, poetic feeling, religious spirit, and a largeness of accent and manner. Yet the gypsy glance and gypsy voice lurk behind many a pious or pompous bar. Apart from his invention of a new form—or rather the condensation and revisal of an old one—the symphonic poem—Liszt's greatest contribution to are is the wild, truant, rhapsodic extempore element he infused into modern music; nature in her most reckless, untrammeled moods he interpreted with fidelity. But the drummers in the line of moral gasoline who controlled criticism in Germany refused to see Liszt except as an ex-piano virtuoso with the morals of a fly and a perverter of art. Even the piquant triangle in his piano concerto was suspected as possibly suggesting the usual situation of French comedy.

The Liszt-Wagner question no longer presents any difficulties to the fair minded. It is a simple one, for men still living know that Wagner, to reach his musical apogee, to reach his public, had to lean heavily on the musical genius and individual inspiration of Liszt. The later Wagner would not have existed—as we now know him—without first traversing the garden of Liszt. This is not a theory but a fact.—From Franz Liszt—The Real and Legendary," by James Huneker, in Scribner's

Damning With False Praise.

William Dean Howells, the author was talking about a criticism that praised him almost fulsomely

"I don't quite like such indiscriminate praise," he said "Such praise does a man more harm than good It is like the enthusiastic policeman's remark about the genial new mayor

"'Oh, he's a fine feller,' the policeman said 'Why, it don't matter who ye are, he'll get drunk with ye.'"

SAW ONLY SIGNS OF BADNESS

Character-Reading Professor Discovered the Criminal Type but Overlooked the White Flower.

The professor who reads character from physiognomy pointed to the boy opposite. He belonged to the criminal type, said the professor. Look at his eyes, his ears, his cheek bones, his mouth—criminal, every one of them

The boy sat very still. All about him were other boys swinging ball bats, and cuffing each other's ears, but that, the professor said, was only the natural overflow of animal spirits; the quiet boy was too thoroughly steeped in criminality to have any animal spirits. Just as the professor's companion was beginning to wonder if it was safe to ride in the same car with the youthful degenerate the boy reached down into his pocket and brought forth a white flower It was a common field flower, a cluster of tiny white blossoms topping a slender stalk The boy seemed very fond of it. He twirled the stalk, he stroked the leaves and petals, and every touch was soft and tender But the professor had no eyes for those gentle fingers, he was intent on the unmistakable signs of inherited depravity.

"A bad one, he is, all right," said the professor with a solemn shake of the head

But the other person looked at the flower again A bad one, was he? Maybe; but the other person had doubts.

John H. Hixenbaugh, 108 Wood street, Belle Vernon, Pa., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for three years. My back became lame and sore and it was necessary for me to give up my work. I finally learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply, I began their use The contents of four boxes effected a complete cure." (Statement given September 3, 1909.)

A LASTING EFFECT

On Nov. 12, 1909, Mr. Hixenbaugh, said: "I do not hesitate to confirm the statement I gave for publication in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago. WHY HE LIKES WATERMELONS

Colored Man Discourses Philosophically on Those Soothing, Cooling and Filling Fruits.

A well-known lawyer, who is spending his vacation at home doing nothing, or, as he says, "loafing with all his might," tells of a talk he had recently with his colored hired man.

Going to the stable he found John with his face buried in a big piece of watermelon.

"Why is it, John, that colored people are so fond of watermelons?"

"I don't know," he replied, grinning, "'less its jes' because dey's people. I knows a heap o' white folks 'at likes em, too. I likes 'em 'cause dey's soothin', an' coolin', an' fillin', an' I spose dey 'similates dat a-way wid white folks. I reckon dey ain' much difference 'tween white folks and cullud folks' insides."

"Perhaps not. Do you consider the watermelon a fruit or a vegetable?"

"Well, now, it's jus' like this: Watermelons ain' no vegetable, cause dey won't stan' cookin' like cabbage nor cannin' like beans, nor dryin' like red peppers, an' dey ain' no fruit, 'cause dey doan grow on trees an' you can't put 'em in your pockets like apples and peaches. Looks to me like dey's jes' watermelons."

"How would it do to call it the fruit of a cucurbitaceous vine, distinguished for interior pulpiness and copiousness of watery juice?"

"Dat's it, 'zactly," said John; "dat's jus' what I was goin' to say."—Indianapolis News.

SEEMED TO FILL THE BILL

Young Suffragette Appeared to the Youth's Mother to Be Suitable as His Wife.

The young suffragette who had insisted on marrying the young man with whom she had fallen in love, approached the young man's mother in fear and trembling.

"Can you support my son," asked that lady sternly, "in the style to which he has been accustomed?"

"I cannot, madam,. He will have to supply all the cash."

"Um. Are you able, in spite of your advanced views, to keep him badly in debt?"

"I am. That is my specialty."

"Do you know how to nurse him if he should fall ill?"

"Haven't the remotest idea. My childhood has been spent in attending caucuses."

"Ha! Will you guarantee to kiss him good-by every morning?"

"If I happen to remember it—but I can't guarantee anything."

"What time do you expect to come in at night?"

"O, anywhere from 12 to 3 in the morning."

"Do you rehearse your speeches at home?"

"Yes, as a rule."

The mother's face relaxed

"We must be cautious in these matters," she said sweetly. "But, on the whole, I think you will do."—Life.

Then and Now.

Prior to the last 15 years, by the time people had attained their first quarter of a century they considered themselves pretty much formed as to physical and mental characteristics. If they were ambitious and energetic they perhaps carried on some kind of exercise for their physical well-being, and guarded against mental deterioration as they advanced in years by occasionally taking up new studies or reviewing old ones; as a dear old lady of my acquaintance at the age of eighty-nine began to review her algebra to keep her mind active.

Now everything is changed. We cannot settle down comfortably in the thought of anything in the regular routine of life which we may not be called upon to alter at a moment's notice. Most of us have found that few of our established habits are right and that unless we are willing to be left hopelessly behind our associates we must learn over again all that we acquired in infancy, and that has since become a matter of automatic action.—The Atlantic.

Shine With Every Drink.

There have been in the history of barber shops such plans as "A shave and a shine all for a dime," "A haircut and a shine free," but it was left for a negro barber shop at 18 Ivy street to give a free shoe shine when a drink was paid for. That is, it was a Sunday blind tiger in which Will Strong, a bootblack, sold liquor and then gave his customer a free shine.

The police had suspected the barber shop for some time and on last Sunday they made a raid and found a large lot of whisky in pint bottles. Will Strong was in charge and was running a bootblack stand. He claimed that another negro had brought the whisky in to the shop without his knowing it. The Recorder sent Will Strong to the chain gang for thirty days.—Atlanta Constitution.

Jacobs of Milford and his daughter, it came into those of Mr. Potter. It is of six octaves, and is in a solid mahogany frame of plain design.

MEN RISK TOO MUCH

Life insurance companies now are very careful about issuing policies to active men over 35 years old for the chances are that they have impaired their health greatly by overwork.

Of course, if steps are taken in time, this damage can be repaired. Mr. Everett Neely of San Antonio Tex., says in a recent letter:

"My health failed lately owing to overwork, and as I did not get better after a month, I began taking Vinol.

It has given me a better appetite, helped me to sleep and built me up in general so that I now feel like my former self. It is a great pleasure to recommend Vinol to everyone who needs a strength renewer."

Every man, woman and child who is in poor health, weak, nervous and run-down, ought to know that Vinol is exactly the right thing to build them up and make them strong again. It is made from fresh cod livers and tonic iron, without and oil and is delicious to take. We guarantee Vinol to do just what we say and give back your money if it does not. Hirsch Drug Co. ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Every one who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is commonly caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices, or by lack of tone in the walls of the stomach. The result is that the stomach loses its power to digest food.

We are now able to supply certain missing elements—to help to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to aid in making the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a most dependable remedy for disordered stomachs, indigestion, and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the results.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. Craig's Drug Store.

CACTI FOR TELEPHONE POLES

Scheme for a Government Line in Arizona Desert Which Is Believed to Be Feasible.

Sahuara for telephone and telegraph poles is the latest idea and one that is to be tried out. It sounds plausible and it is believed that it will be more economical than the old style of poles. Its test is to come from Arizona.

The government is to build a telephone system for the forestry service of the Coronado forest reserve. The first of these lines to be built out of Tucson is to be used into the Catalinas, and it is there that the Sahuara experiment is to be tried.

The giant cacti will not be sawed off and set up nor will they be transplanted, but the growing plant will be used as a pole where it is found practical. Where they can be found in what approaches alignment, so that the line will not have to zigzag too much, the sahuara up in the canons through which the line will pass are to be utilized for the purpose of attaching brackets to which the wires will be fastened. And so the secret is out.

Along the proposed line it is difficult to set poles, owing to the rocky nature of the country traversed Not only is this the case, but it is difficult to get the poles up there in the hills to set, while the sahuaras are right there in many instances, and while not at a uniform distance this is not considered important. Another saving will be that while the made to order poles will not oust the ready made ones, these will be of long life and will not demand replenishing and replacing from time to time.

AS A MAN SHOULD ANSWER

For Once a New Yorker Rose to the Occasion and Was There With Apt Response.

Two men somewhat alike as to build, dress and general appearance entered an upper West side restaurant within a few minutes of one another the other evening, says the New York Press. They were also alike and not different from the average New Yorker in burying themselves in newspapers as soon as they had chosen tables.

Presently there entered a well-dressed, good-looking woman, somewhat in a hurry, if one were to judge from her manner, and a trifle distrait. Glancing hastily around the room, she seated herself at the table which one of the men had selected.

He merely lifted his eyes from his paper for an instant, in the disinterested manner New Yorkers adopt, and fell to reading again, while the woman seized the menu card and began studying it. It took her a couple of minutes to decide what she wanted. Having found it, she laid her hand on the arm of the man. As he looked up at her a curious expression came over her face.

"Why—why, you're not my husband, are you?" she gasped.

"I am sorry, madam," he replied gallantly, "that I am not."

Then both of them laughed, which aroused the man at the other table from his paper long enough to permit him to announce himself.

Largest Gas Tank in the World.

Contracts have been awarded for the erection at Pittsburg at a cost of $500,000 of the largest holder for the storage of natural gas in the world.

The big holder will be erected on the company's storage property at Rebecca street and South avenue, North Side, close to the great natural gas holder which now has the record for size. These two great holders will be filled with natural gas during the night for use in the North Side district during the daytime and will be used to cover any possible emergency in the natural gas supply for the territory north of the Allegheny river.

The giant holder will have a capacity of 6,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas. It will have a diameter of 226 feet, will be 208 feet high and the material composing it will weigh about 5,000 tons. The present natural gas holder of the Philadelphia company has a capacity of 5,000,000 cubic feet, is 198 feet in diameter and 190 feet high.—Oil and Gas.

Tokyo Type Foundry.

The leading type foundry of the Far East is located at Tokyo and produces two series of Chinese type. The first series, consisting of 5,000 characters, has in combinations a total of 150,000 separate pieces of type. The second series has 3,000 characters and 100,000 combinations.

The producers of the type publish a catalogue in which each character is printed and by the side of this character is given the number of combinations in which it is used. This foundry also produces Japanese characters, the Hirakana in 152 characters and 30,000 combinations and the Katakana in 82 characters and 19,000 combinations.

Old Festival Retained.

With an unbroken record dating back to 1682, the quaint and picturesque rush-bearing festival was observed at St. Oswald's church, Grasmere, Westmoreland, England, recently. The ceremony is a survival of the days when rushes were employed to protect worshipers from damp floors while kneeling. Each year the inhabitants conveyed to the church a new supply of rushes. Nowadays the vicar of the parish received a kind of memorial gift of rushes and a special service marks the occasion.

MAY CORNER COCOA CROP

Brazil Is Much Pleased With Its Success in Raising Price of Coffee.

Encouraged by the success it has achieved in controlling the coffee crop of the republic and forcing Americans to pay a high price the Brazilian government is now planning to enter into a combination with Portugal and Ecuador to corner the cocoa crop and and manipulate prices at will.

These three countries produce more than half of the world's output of cocoa, and Jose Marcellino, a Brazilian who formerly served in the senate of that country, is the father of the plan to whoop up the prices of cocoa the world over.

A large London banking house is reported to have offered $10,000,000 to the promoters of the valorization plan in case the three governments interested will enter into a satisfactory agreement. Valorization of coffee by the government of Brazil has been very successful. The government has financed the crops and by lending money to growers has been able to prevent the sale of coffee, except at prices which were satisfactory to the growers.

A few years ago, when the United States took the duty of five cents a pound off coffee, Brazil repaid this country by placing an export duty of the same amount on coffee. In repayment for this greedy act it has frequently been argued that the United States should again tax Brazilian coffee and many economists insist that the imposition of a duty on coffee would upset the Brazilian valorization plan without increasing the price of coffee to the American consumer.

Cocoa is a much more difficult crop than coffee to control, because of the perishable nature of the cocoa beans. When kept for any length of time they become wormy and are worthless.

MOST VALUABLE OF GARDENS

It Is Located Inside the Bank of England and Was Once a Graveyard.

"As safe as the Bank of England," has become almost a proverb But recent events have shown that the bank is not quite as safe in its foundations as was generally supposed. One or two great cracks have suddenly appeared, which necessitates the help of the builder

There are many curious things about the bank, but among them how many know that it possesses a respectable garden? It is to be found just inside the Threadneedle street entrance, on the left hand side.

This old-fashioned garden has a fountain in the center, graveled paths and a couple of trees, the whole forming a quadrangle with the bank building running all round.

Its history is a curious one. In reality this garden is the churchyard of the vanished church of St. Christopher-le-Stock, which used to stand where the Mansion house now is.

One reason why the church was pulled down was because its tower completely overlooked the bank, and it was feared that it would be a danger to the "Old Lady" if the church was occupied by rioters.

As the bank occupies the site of the entire parish of Christopher-le-Stock, it is said that any freeman of the city can claim admission to the old garden. But, as a matter of fact, any one who cares to see it may do so during business hours, and it is well worth a visit, if only for the fact that it is the most valuable garden in the world!—Stray Stories.

How Women Take Criticism.

In the Life of John Oliver Hoobes, edited by her father, John Morgan Richards, there is a slashing arraignment of the literary woman in her attitude toward those who criticize her work. It is from the pen of Moberly Bell, the famous editor of the London Times. Moberly Bell and Mrs. Craigie were personal friends, and the latter wrote protesting against the treatment that the Flute of Pan had received at the hands of the Times reviewers. In response the editor wrote in part: "There is one thing and only one thing that the omnipotent has absolutely failed to create. He has made good women, bad women, clever women, silly women, selfish women and heroines of self-sacrifice, but he had never yet made a woman who could stand—I will not say adverse criticism, but—one note of deviation from absolute and unequalified praise of any of her literary efforts. This is not in blame of anyone—unless the Creator—it is a law as certain as the law of gravitation, and there is and has never been any exception to it from Deborah to George Eliot, and even later (the assumption of a masculine name cannot alter the fact), there is a unanimity of proof."—Bookman.

The Mosquito Still Here.

Along in the early springtime—about the time when the frogs come out of the mud and tune up for the concert—we organize a mosquito-exterminating crusade here in Baltimore, and we proceed, hypothetically, to exterminate the pests with energy and enthusiasm. By August we have forgotten all about the mosquito warfare, and September always brings the swarms. The spring of the year is the right time to start the war on the mosquito, just as it is the proper time for inaugurating the fly-exterminating crusade. But in either case the warfare must be a matter of eternal vigilance.—Baltimore American.

Weak, Sickly, Ailing Women

have little ambition, their own troubles occupy their thoughts. They are nervous despondent, poor home makers and most wretched companions.

Such women should try Lydia E. Pinkhams's Vegetable Compound.

For nearly forty years it has been the standby of American womanhood, overcoming nervousness, backaches and "the blues," which are all symtoms of one cause.

It strengthens the proper nerves and muscles and thus corrects displacements.

DEATH RECORD

Mrs. Clara Elizabeth Ruettger died this morning at her home on Schoonmaker avenue after a lingering illiness of tuberculosis, in the 32 year of her age. Mrs. Ruettger had been ailing for some time and her death was not entirely unexpected. Deceased was a daughter of Squire W. W. Elliott, the first Justice of the Peace in Monessen.

William Ruettger the husband and four small children and two half sisters, Dorothy and Margaret Elliott are the survivors. The funeral will take place Wednesday, interment in Grandview cemetery.

SOCIALIST MEETING WELL ATTENDED

The open meeting and banquet in Kelly's hall Sunday evening, given by the Socalists of Monessen was largely attended, the hall being filled to its capacity. A number of addresses were made by prominent workers of the party and there was deep interest. An orchestra from Charleroi furnished some good music which was interspersed by a number of well rendered vocal numbers. After the meeting a most appetising luncheon was served, much to the appreciation of the large number present.
